Provo city registration ends today

By AMY LONG Universe Staff Writer

Today is the last day to register to vote in the Provo city elections.

According to Erin Tuttle, a member of Students for Local Involvement, more than 1,100 students have already registered. Tuttle hopes to register 1,500 students by the end of the day.

An estimated one-third of the registered students are expected to vote. Because of this, it is important to register as many students as possible, Tuttle said.

Most of the students who have been registering are freshmen. Other students are not as responsaid.

At their booth on the law school premises, SLI only registered three students in one hour, Tuttle said. This stands in stark contrast to the hordes of people that swarm around SLI's booth outside the library.

The city council meets every other week to make decisions about Provo's future.

These decisions "Young people bring affect BYU stunew insights to old dents, Tuttle said. The seven city problems. I don't think council members (BYU city council candiare not representative of the BYU

Mayoral candidate Karl Thalman welcomes student voters.

"I want to encourage any young person to be involved if they want to be involved," Thalman said.

BYU students can help out with community goals. From his involvement with the Boys and Girls Clubs, he has seen that BYU volunteers make a difference. Thalman said.

"We could use that source more," he said."Young people bring new insights to old problems," Thalman said. "I don't think it's (BYU city council candidates) a joke."

The primaries will be held Oct. 7, and the elections will take place on Nov. 4. Voting will take place at local schools and stake centers, Tuttle said.

The final chance to register is today. SLI will have a booth in front of the library where students can register between 10 a.m. and 4

Oberg said the incident illustrated a difference between the U.S. and Russian space programs. The Russians don't maneuver Mir out of the way of approaching objects - especially since distance estimates are inexact. U.S. officials already have decided that the international space station, a much bigger orbiting target, will use thrusters to try to dodge them.

Bodyguard conscious; now talking to doctors

Associated Press

PARIS — The man who may hold the key to the mystery of why Princess Diana's Mercedes crashed in a Paris tunnel — bodyguard Trevor Rees-Jones — is conscious and able to communicate, doctors said Tuesday.

The news raised hopes that investigators could soon question the 29year-old British former paratrooper and sole survivor of the high-speed crash last month.

The accident in the early-morning hours of Aug. 31 killed Diana, her companion, Dodi Fayed and driver Henri Paul.

Investigators have been focusing on Paul, who was legally drunk and on Prozac at the time of the crash. But they also are looking at the role of paparazzi who were pursuing the Mercedes in an effort to get pictures of Diana and Dodi.

"The condition of Mr. Trevor Rees-Jones has noticeably improved," said Pierre Coriat, chief of anesthesiology at the Pitie-Salpetriere hospital.

"He is perfectly conscious and can communicate well, though he tires quickly. In the course of the coming days, he should become self-sufficient," he said in a statement.

Rees-Jones has been taken off an artificial respirator and his lung infection is "under control," the statement said.

It was unclear how long Rees-Jones, an employee of the Fayed family nicknamed "Dodi's shadow," will need to stay in the hospi-

Except for doctors, only Rees-Jones' ex-wife and parents have been allowed at his bedside. A phalanx of police are guarding his Earlier reports of the bodyguard's condition had been much less sanguine. His parents had said he was drifting in and out of consciousness after undergoing extensive surgery to repair a smashed jaw. He also suffered chest injuries.

Coriat did not say whether Rees-Jones had spoken about the crash yet. It is not clear whether he even remembers it, or knows that the other three passengers died.

Police reportedly are concerned that the shock of the accident and large doses of anesthesia during surgery could hinder Rees-Jones' ability to recall the crash. British news reports have quoted his mother, Jill Rees-Jones, as saying he has not been well enough yet to be told about the deaths. Rees-Jones is investigators' best hope for answering major questions in the inquiry, including the role of photographers trailing Diana, the speed the car was traveling and the condition of driver, Nine photographers and a motorcycle courier are under formal investigation for manslaughter and failure to help people in danger, an obligation under French law. They have not been formally charged. French television reported

Tuesday that investigators are considering the possibility that another car was involved in the crash. The report on France 2 said red shards of glass, apparently from brake lights, were found at the crash scene — but that the Mercedes' brake lights were still intact.

Investigators long have said there was a possibility that a car carrying paparazzi may have blocked the Mercedes' path, but they have appeared to discount that scenario as the investigation progresses.

Speed is a critical issue in the inquiry, as the Mercedes has been estimated to have reached speeds of up to nearly 120 mph.

Blood tests have shown Paul had a blood-alcohol level more than three times the legal limit, and also had taken Prozac and another drug used to combat the effects of alcoholism.

Boy rides mower to save baby girl

BETHEL, Maine — A 12-year-old Utah boy is finding out whether the grass is greener on the other side of the country — from the seat of his riding lawn

Ryan Tripp from Beaver, Utah, is missing a month of school and traveling on an $8,000 mower to raise money for a baby girl who needs a liver transplant.

Along the way, he hopes to break the Guinness Book of World Records for longest lawn mower ride. The current record is 3,034 miles. Ryan plans to finish in Washington with about 3,200 miles.

But Ryan's dream doesn't end with the mileage. When he came up with the idea for the expedition in July, his big goal was to cut the White House lawn. "We don't have confirmation yet (on the White House), but we might be able to mow the lawn in front of the Capitol," he said.

Ryan must average about 95 miles a day to make it to Washington in the next

42 days set aside for the trip. Donations for the baby girl, Whitnie Pender, can be sent to Utah Independent Bank, 195 North Main St., Beaver, Utah 84713.

Heavy rains delay hiking in Zion's

ZION NATIONAL PARK — Park officials still are not allowing campers to enter the Zion Narrows after heavy rains made an access road to the popular slot canyons impassable.

Despite a day of dry weather and subsiding water in the north fork of the Virgin River that runs through the narrows, flows Tuesday remained slightly above the 120 cubic feet of water per second allowable for permits to be issued, but well below the 2,295 cfs reported Monday morning.

According to the park's backcountry office, the road leading to Chamberlain's Ranch, the trailhead for the 16-mile, 2-day hike, was too slick and muddy to negotiate because of heavy rains on Sunday and Monday.

According to the park's backcountry office, a decision will be made Wednesday regarding whether or not to issue permits to hikers who want to enter the canyon Thursday.

Air Force calls off 72-day bomb search

EAGLE, Colo. — Frustrated and puzzled after a 72-day sweep, the Air Force on Tuesday gave up the search for the four 500-pound bombs from an A-10 warplane that crashed mysteriously in the Rockies.

"I'm not going to speculate as to where they are. I'm just going to stick to the facts," Brig. Gen. Donald Streater said. "We have not found any conclusive evidence of the bombs."

During the five-month sweep of 13,300-foot Gold Dust Peak, Air Force crews recovered the remains of A-10 pilot Capt. Craig Button, along with nine tons of debris from the 13-ton aircraft, but found no trace of the bombs.

Radar, reconnaissance flights and magnetometer devices were used in the hunt for the bombs, and a Navy diver explored one of the seven lakes in the area, the general said.

Strike leaves jobs available at UPS

ATLANTA — United Parcel Service said so many part-time employees never returned to work after last month's strike that the company is hiring workers instead of laying them off as the company had threatened.

UPS estimated Monday that it lost 4 to 6 percent of its business because of the 15-day walkout by the Teamsters. The company warned during the strike that such a drop would force 13,000 to 17,000 layoffs.

However, UPS said 15,000 part-time employees never came back. Since the strike ended, UPS said, the company has picked up an average of 11.8 million to 12 million packages a day. "The one thing the strike did was undermine the confidence these businesses had," Black said. "They are back to shipping a lot of volume, but at the same time they are saying: 'I can't take a chance. I need to diversify my shipping."

Meanwhile, Teamsters' spokesman Rand Wilson in Washington said hundreds of employees have reported excessive discipline and harassment for minor infractions.

Utah car laws to be enforced

By ELISA BALL Universe Staff Writer

Utah is cracking down on car registration laws and license policies.

"Register Now," the program recently announced by the Utah Tax Commission, requires all Utah residents to register their vehicles in the state of Utah.

Utah law mandates vehicle registration within 60 days in a number of instances: Those who have established or own a permanent home, those who live in Utah continuously or non-continuously for a total of six months, those who engage in a trade or profession in Utah excluding seasonal work, those who declare and surrounding areas are filled Utah residency to obtain privileges not ordinarily extended to nonresidents, or those who obtain a Utah driver's license.

But full-time students are exempt from the law.

No longer can residents drive an out-of-state licensed car. Too many residents are taking advantage of Utah's cheaper insurance while registering their vehicle in another state.

Some Utahns do not register locally to avoid paying Utah sales tax,

"We earned about $13,000 our first two months and now average about $3,000 per month," Bailey said of his father-and-son business.

Watson has had similar success. "Anyone who becomes part of Family of Eagles, whether they purchase the product for themselves or not, has the potential to earn over $100,000 per year. I'm earning two to three times that."

"My dad says that the more I make, the better-looking I get," Watson said. "Maybe if I make enough I'll finally find a wife."

No matter what their reasons are for joining a MLM company, Gibson said there are definitely some points about MLM everyone should consid-

In an article printed by the Deseret News April 20, Gibson outlined 10 points to consider when looking into network marketing. Items to consider include the company's product(s); the company's history (FTC and Attorney General investigations, growth, culture, credibility, start-up costs); training material or fees; domestic and international presence; communication with distributors; quotas; deadlines and compensation plan.

"You have to realize that comparing one company to another may be like comparing apples to oranges," Watson said. "Every MLM company is so different from the other; it's not accurate to judge the whole industry on one company or one opinion. If we judged cars the same way, none of us would be driving."

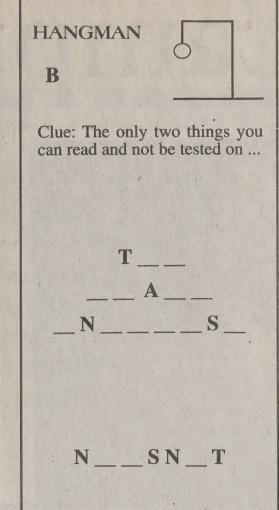

But even after careful research, each prospective employee must decide for him or herself if an opportunity will work for them.

"Networking marketing is not for everyone," Watson said. "It may not be for you."

Many BYU students interested in traditional business training have also taken an interest in network marketing. The Marriott School of Center Management's Entrepreneurship will offer a Winter class, Business Semester Management 490R, on the subject "Entrepreneurial Direct Marketing and Distribution."

The class will focus, in part, on network marketing along with other types of businesses including franchising, catalog sales, Internet business and 800 numbers.

Randall counsels to 'watch the rain'

By SARAH L. OSTLER Universe Staff Writer

Calling on students to "watch the rain," Professor David M. Randall, director of the school of music. spoke of using art forms to understand the gospel when he addressed students and faculty at Devotional Tuesday.

Randall, a long-time member of the BYU faculty, said to seek after all things "virtuous, lovely, or of good report or praiseworthy." We cannot progress down the straight and narrow path "if (we) allow (ourselves) to lie back in an easy chair," he said.

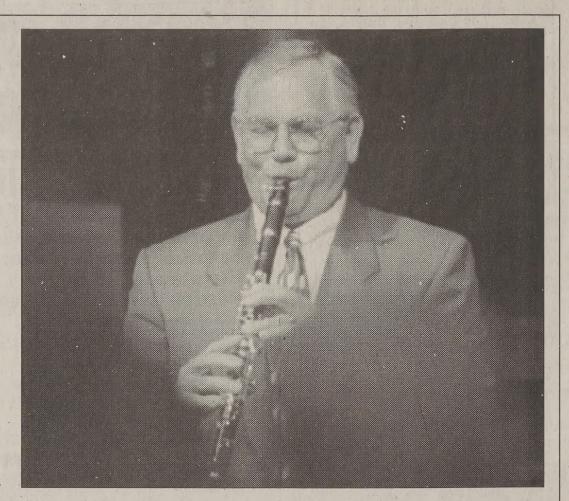

Citing Lehi's dream, Randall said that nobody was forced to take the iron rod. Rather, the more we fully experience the gospel of Jesus Christ, the stronger our hold on the rod becomes. Then we can benefit from "the greatest of all the gifts of God," eternal life, Randall said.

Quoting Hugh B. Brown, Randall said pictures and music judged worthy to attract the Spirit are "the daily bread of the soul." Through music and pictures, we can focus our minds and enrich our souls.

Although the Spirit will help and comfort us, it will not do every- inspire your thoughts and influence they appeared to him?" thing for us.

Randall cited Dr. Arthur Henry King, emeritus member of the BYU faculty, and said, "It is up to our church to educate ourselves to the point at which we can experience the best of art."

Meetings held to inform studen interested in seeking scholarsh

By HILARY ROSS Universe Staff Writer

The College of General Education and Honors is holding scholarship meetings Sept. 18 and Sept. 25 to inform students of available scholarships and fellowships.

Students interested in learning more about scholarships and fellowships may attend one of these meetings at 11 a.m. in the Coray Lecture Hall of the Maeser Building.

The meetings are held to inform students about scholarships and to get students excited about applying for them, said Steven Benzley, associate dean of general education.

Many students know about scholarships, but they do not apply for them because they feel they are not qualified to receive them, Benzley said.

Matthew Beecher, a senior from Preston, Idaho, majoring in business management, said he did not think he had the necessary qualifications to apply for any scholarships.

"Students need to have faith in their abilities," Beecher said. "Everyone has some service or work experience. Students need to apply for as many scholarships as possible."

Beecher followed his own advice by applying for many different scholar-

As a result, he received the State Farm Exceptional Student Fellowship worth $3,000.

In 1997, BYU students received scholarships and fellowships worth more than $1.3 million, Benzley said. Although students must have a minimum 3.7 grade point average to apply for the scholarships, grades are not the most important factor in selecting scholarship winners.

"The high GPA is not necessarily what wins the scholarship. What is important is that students show they have done significant work in undergraduate research," Benzley said.

Helping professors do research is important to show on an application, said Daniel Austin, a senior from Aurora, Colo. majoring in chemistry. "Doing research with professors is important to have for applications, resumes and letters of recommendation. There are a lot of factors that are important, but doing resear the most important," Austin Students can go to 35 Building or contact Hilary 378-3036 for more informa

Garrens to repeat premiere

By TIMOTHY KENNEDY Universe Staff Writer

If students happened to pass by the J. Reuben Clark Law Building Friday night, they may have heard the sound of laughter coming from the lecture hall on the ground floor. That wasn't the sound of a night class in torts or criminal law — it was the season premiere of the Garrens Comedy Troupe.

For those who are new to the area and who may still be wondering if the Garrens' comedy show is entertaining enough to justify the cost ($4 for the 7 p.m. show, $5 for the 9 p.m. show), their fears can be put to rest.

The opening sketch, "Stress Management 172R," was a parody of the frustrations associated with the first day of class, a situation all students can laugh at.

The Garrens were able to take this type of situation and lampoon it in a way that was both hysterical and personal.

Not only did the Garrens perform of integrating the audience into their skits like "Stress Management 172R" and their popular "Guys Apartment," but they also performed various improvisations.

One improvisation required the audience to choose a sport. Friday's audience chose parachuting. The Garrens then asked them to choose something to parachute with (a banana) and something to parachute through (Jell-O).

A Garren who had been sent out of the room came out on stage and had to determine what was happening.

The Garrens also did a fabulous job tion.

From the show's beginning, the audience was divided into three sections and told to compose a song based on various sounds. They dictated improvisations and even directed portions of the show.

As a result, the audience was lively, playful and fully immersed in the show from beginning to end.

The key to the show's success, however, was the performers. The Garrens are a talented group who have an obvious comedic chemistry when working together.

Each performer adds his own distinctive touch to the Garrens, whether it be Aaron Johnston performing an interpretation of a Shakespearean play or Eric Snider impersonating Michael McLean.

The Garrens Comedy Troupe is repeating its premiere Friday at 7 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. in 205 JRCB. Call 379-8888 for more informa-

Indian culture celebrats at Spanish Fork festivi

By CLAUDIA LORENZANA
Universe Staff Writer

Thousands of college students, members of the Hare Krishna religious group, natives of India and local community members gathered together Saturday to enjoy the Festival of India in Spanish Fork.

The festival resembled a state fair with events and booths for people of all ages.

Native Indian music filled the air as brightly costumed dancers performed on a small stage. The dancers captivated the audience with their squats, light stomps and flowing arm movements.

The food booth was one of the more popular booths at the festival. The menu consisted of authentic Indian food for those who wanted to experience the real thing, and pita pizzas for children and the less adventurous.

Jessica Taele, a former BYU student from Orem, thought the spices in the food were representative of India.

"I thought the food was different, but I liked it," Taele said. "My kids, however, didn't like it and stuck with the pizza."

The animal farm, which included nearly one dozen llamas and pot-bellied pigs, was a popular booth among children at the festival. Since members of the Hare Krishna religious group are vegetarians, the farm also displayed a sign giving information on how one could adopt a pig as a pet.

The festival also included several covered booths where people could learn more about Krishna beliefs.

Julie Hullinger, a senior majoring in elementary education, thought the booths were informative.

"I liked the booths a lot. They included a lot of information about their temples, festivals and beliefs," Radha Gopinath, a Hare Krishna devotee of 20 years, sold books at the festival and answered questions on Krishna beliefs, which focus on selfrealization and understanding.

"We chant, dance and eat our way back to the spiritual world," Gopinath

Volleyball team stuffs Aggies despite loss of powerful hitter

By ROSEMARY LARSEN Universe Sports Writer

The Cougars slid by the Utah State Aggies last night despite losing a key player to a knee injury.

BYU was up one game and at 14-3 in the second game at the time of the injury.

BYU's Caroline Steuer went down after one of her ten kills moved the Congars into game-point position. Steuer injured her anterior cruciate igament according to BYU coach Elaine Michaelis.

Michaelis was not sure of the extent of the damage, but with a en-day break ahead for the team before its next game, she will levise a plan to deal with the loss of Steuer who was on a rampage in he first two games hitting .563 per-

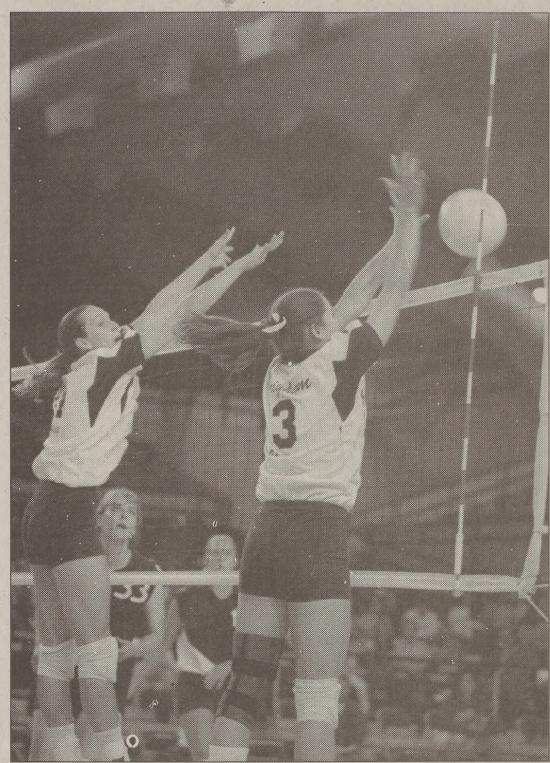

Fortunately for the Cougars, reshman Melissa Layton came in or Steuer and Anna-Lena Smith served to win the second game, ending at 15-3.

The loss of Steuer came as a surprise to everyone and "the rest of he (BYU) team members were too relaxed when Caroline (Steuer) left and they lost their focus," said Michaelis. "She's a spark. There's do question she'll be a major loss, but we'll think about it and come ip with a plan."

The Aggies took advantage of the lougars' loss by jumping out early the third game with a 3-0 lead. Itah State's Amy Goulding had a areer night with 14 kills and Lori Sargent made 13 digs to give the YU women some competition fter two quick games.

"The first two games we played retty awesome volleyball," Michaelis said. "The digs to the kill onversion was good and we've een working on defense that lowed in the match, but it was a igh level of volleyball against the nuch improved Utah State team nd they played tough."

ASU coach believes team as good as last year

Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz. — Coach Bruce Snyder has seen enough of his Arizona State team to believe the allegedly irreplaceable players from last year's Rose Bowl squad have been replaced.

"Ryan Kealy really looked comfortable with what we were doing, and I don't think we want to change much," Snyder said Monday about the redshirt coached to do," Snyder said. "That's freshman who took over as Arizona State's quarterback after Jake Plummer was drafted in the second round.

Kealy was unflappable on Saturday as the Sun Devils (2-0) beat Miami 23-12 in the Orange Bowl. He completed 18 of 26 passes for 239 yards, one touchdown and an interception.

In addition, J.R. Redmond and Michael Martin erased the memory of Terry Battle, another of 15 former Sun Devils who made NFL rosters this year, by rushing for 105 and 103 yards, respectively; and the offensive and defensive lines outplayed the Hurricanes.

"Our players did the things they were why you recruit them, and that's why you scholarship them. I'm really pleased."

After a seven-hour, weather-hampered trip back to the desert, Snyder put his team through a Sunday evening workout with the scout teams running said. "In any game that the team is running the ball, you feel absolutely that means you are in control and you helpless. You feel like there is hardly anything you can do during the game.

We are going to stop the run."

The Cougars were able to pass the ball effectively in the second half of the Washington game. Edwards said he was pleased with their ability to throw the ball, but is still committed to the running game.

"We are going to try to run the BYU cornerback Ben Cook feels ball," Edwards said. "It will take some time but we will get better at running the ball.'

Edwards knows Arizona State has seen the film of the Washington game and will try to do the same thing. "They'll bring the safeties up and play tight, especially after watching what Washington did," Edwards said.

The Cougars will have their hands full on Saturday. The Sun Devils have won 17 of their last 19 games and eight straight at home. BYU needs "You have to stop the run," Snyder this win to get back in the national picture before starting the WAC

BYU lacrosse team sets sites on repeating as national champion

By HEATHER REEVES Universe Sports Writer

"National Champion" is an elusive title. But there is a team on campus which holds that title. Anybody know which team?

The BYU lacrosse team had a record setting season in 1997. BYU recorded its best record, finishing with 15 wins and two losses. It won the conference title for the first time, and it won the national title for the first time in the history of the team.

The BYU lacrosse team competes at the collegiate club level, which some players, such as captain Adam Davis, like to refer to as "virtual varsity"

The Cougars did beat Colorado College, a varsity team, for the Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Lacrosse League title last season. Colorado College had taken the league title seven of the last eight years. BYU is the first non-varsity team to take the Winning the league gave BYU the chance to go to St. Louis and compete in the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association tournament. The winner of the tournament is the national champion.

The Cougars took on and beat the University of Texas Longhorns, University of Arizona Wildcats and the UC Santa Barbara Gauchos to capture the title.

Lamb said winning the national title has opened up BYU as a lacrosse school to players from the east coast. "Now members of the church have the option to come to BYU for the purpose of playing lacrosse," Lamb said.

How is this year looking for the Cougars? "Our goal is to go to St. Louis again," Lamb said. "We lost five of our key players last year, four to missions and one to graduation. But we have eight new key players coming

Davis said he is not really worried about the turnover of players. "Although we lost some key players, we're going to be equally as strong because of our midfield," Davis said.

Outlooks are high for this season. Davis said two teams to watch out for will be the University of Colorado, Boulder, and Colorado State University. "CU will be our toughest team," Davis said. "They have a strong program with a good coach."

"These things seem like common sense to us and they don't to them. So we're asking the ethics committee to step in," said Glenn Bailey, a spokesman for the coalition and head of the Crossroads Urban Center.

Bailey asked the ethics board in a letter dated Sept. 4 to "consider this request urgent ... If your work is to have any value, however, surely these are legitimate concerns that deserve careful scrutiny."

That hasn't been decided yet, said the chairman of the ethics board, Robert Garff. "We have the right to review items and decide whether we will take them up," Garff said.

The coalition wants an opinion on the "ethical implication" of paying Welch that amount after he resigned "in disgrace" following the filing of a misdemeanor charge of domestic bat-

The group also questions the "legality and the appearance of a conflict of interest" in Frank Joklik replacing Welch as the SLOC president and chief executive officer while continuing to serve as the chairman of the organization's board of trustees.

Joklik is expected to be replaced as chairman as soon as Gov. Mike Leavitt and Salt Lake Mayor Deedee Corradini can agree on a replacement.

Concerning Holding, the coalition sees his $13.8 million contract with the SLOC as a "highly inappropriate instance of self-dealing."

Wreckage confirms collision of planes

Associated Press

WINDHOEK, Namibia -Searchers found debris Tuesday from a U.S. cargo plane in the same cold, shark-infested waters where they found remnants of a German aircraft, confirming the two military planes crashed off Namibia's Skeleton Coast.

The prospects of finding survivors from Saturday's crash were "getting slimmer," said Lt. Col. Eddie Brown of South Africa, who is overseeing the search effort.

He said nothing has been heard since faint distress signals were detected Sunday and early Monday. The water, at 59 degrees, "is cold, and I believe there are also sharks in the area," he said. •

The two planes were carrying 33 people when they vanished Saturday while traveling in opposite directions. The German Tupolev 154 was heading from Germany to South Africa, while the American C-141 was flying from Namibia, a coastal country northwest of South Africa, to Ascension Island, off the coast in the South Atlantic.

Only one body - that of an unidentified woman - has been found and taken to an unspecified hospital for examination. Three women were among the 24 people aboard the German plane; all nine aboard the American plane were

Two American C-130 planes carrying 80 people arrived early Tuesday from a Royal Air Force base in the United Kingdom to help with the search.

A German investigative team was awaiting better weather to fly by helicopter to the crash scene, 115 miles west of Cape Fria on the Namibian coast. The area is called the Skeleton Coast because its treacherous waters have claimed many ships. The team was to examine debris being collected by two Namibian fishing research vessels, said South African Air Force Lt. Col. Laverne Machine.

Debris found Monday, including airplane seats and a few papers, came from the German plane, while wreckage from the American plane, including a wing flap, a compartment door and other debris, was found Tuesday.

The South African Air Force received a report Tuesday from a ship saying it saw a flash and fire Saturday, which officials believe was burning debris on the water, Brown said.

In addition, a U.S. satellite recorded a "bright flash" Saturday in the area near where the planes are thought to have collided, Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon said.

The planes were flying at an altitude of about 35,000 feet when the crash occurred, and Bacon said they were operating on different radio frequencies. Air corridors often are shared, but planes traveling in opposite directions are supposed to fly at different altitudes.

Namibian officials said the collision site was off their radar and they didn't know the German plane was coming because they had not received a flight plan.

Officials were also trying to determine why the planes' disappearance was not reported to rescue officials for almost 24 hours.

Jochen Sell, Namibia's chief air traffic officer, told reporters critical air traffic control procedures often are absent in Africa.

The German-operated Tupolev lacked a special radar-detecting device that would have allowed it to see another plane in the area,

German officials said. Some officials doubted much wreckage would be found because the Atlantic is 3,300 feet deep where the two planes apparently collided — too deep for normal diving operations.

Jews won't leave Arab neighborhood

Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Jewish extremists showed no sign of heeding Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's appeal to leave an Arab neighborhood of Jerusalem, instead moving in furniture Tuesday and installing security lights.

Fearing Palestinian anger could lead to riots, Netanyahu postponed a trip to Eastern Europe to search for a way out of the impasse.

"We are trying to reach a solution, and we still haven't examined all the different aspects," Netanyahu

Israel's attorney general toured the settler compound Tuesday and was to meet with Netanyahu before ruling on whether the settlers can be evicted on grounds their presence endangers national security.

Their controversial move into the Mount of Olives neighborhood comes at a time when Israel and the Palestinians were taking tentative steps toward better relations, at the urging of Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, who visited the region last week.

Israeli Police Commissioner Asaf Hefetz warned the new Jewish settlement would trigger Palestinian riots in the city.

The 11 settlers leased the two buildings in east Jerusalem's Ras al-Amud neighborhood from Irving Moskowitz, a Miami bingo millionaire who also owns 3.5 acres of land in the area.

They moved in Sunday, under the cover darkness.

In meetings with Moskowitz's Tuesday, representatives Netanyahu's aides tried to work out a deal under which the settlers would leave voluntarily.

However, there were no signs the settlers intended to leave. Instead, trucks delivered bed frames to the compound and settlers installed floodlights on the rooftops for secu-

"When the situation quiets down in a day or so, I intend to move my whole family here," said Yossi Haikin. "Our plan is to lead a normal, comfortable life here."

Moskowitz visited overnight, affixing a mezuza — a little box with biblical passages — to a doorpost at the compound.

"The people of Israel build their nation," he wrote in the settlers' guest book.

The settlers' move has put Netanyahu in an embarrassing situ-
